

Update

Serious incident to CS-TNV (Airbus A320) in Copenhagen on 8-4-2022

On 19-4-2022, the Danish Accident Investigation Board (AIB) published a press release on the preliminary safety investigation process and the dissemination of validated data obtained during the very early stages of the safety investigation.

At this point, the AIB safety investigation focusses on the validation process of all collected data with specific attention on the asymmetric engine thrust reverser behavior during the aborted landing sequence.

The ongoing AIB safety investigation in cooperation with international stakeholders has not yet reached validated conclusions.

For that reason, the AIB does not publish a 30 days preliminary report but only this update referring to the previously published press release.

If you have any questions to this update statement, you are most welcome to contact the AIB via either phone or e-mail.
